OUR COLLEGES

The birthday anniversary of the legendary John D. Rockefeller this month (July 8) turns one's thoughts to education and especially to our colleges. In 1958 we face a challenge and cannot escape an obligation to shoulder our responsibilities in this vital field.

It is trite to say that what we make out of the youth of today—which will govern us tomorrow—depends upon what foundation and education we give them today. But this is true, and in the world of Communism versus Democracy, we must not neglect the basic concepts of opportunity for all. In the United States, we are very proud of the educational opportunities available to all. While not every student should continue his education, perhaps our system has enabled a higher percentage of our young people to attend college than is the case in any other country in the world. Today, U. S. parents are faced with the rising costs of education, and overcrowded facilities. The independent colleges are hard pressed to make ends meet, not to mention the task of modernization and improvement, in many cases.

Remembering how John Rockefeller gave $23,000,000 in 1892 to revive the University of Chicago, that he established the Rockefeller Foundation with an endowment of $100,000,000 and that in 1913 he gave $50,000,000 to the General Education Board, and made other educational gifts, and how so many other wealthy Americans gave millions in behalf of education, we must look to our own generation to maintain this principal—that making an education available is a responsibility of the individual as well as of the state. Surely, the taxpayer does his share, but we mention that there is a tradition to point to those who have gone beyond their mere line of duty.

RECESSION ENDING?

From numerous quarters come encouraging news. Those of us who have been worried lest we become engulfed in a full-blown depression, have been reassured. And while we are not positive that the recession has touched its bottom, many think that it has.

And one can be fairly certain that this readjustment was a recession and is not to be another depression—which is one source of relief to the worried. Spending is remaining high. Government spending is increasing and pay raises have been granted to millions. Inventories are decreasing in many areas and production has picked up in some.

There are many predictions now that a business upturn will be felt in the autumn. The summer will generally be slow, to be sure, but if the upturn is to be felt in autumn then, that is not far away. The official forecast is for the cost of living to remain relatively stable.

We might have seen the worst of the recession, then. And as long as there is something to look forward to that is better, it is encouraging. In many areas, the farmer has begun to experience somewhat better times and this is all to the good, even if a great portion of the upturn has been an adequate rainfall overall.

VACATION TIME

July is the month of vacation — the mid-summer month. The nights are warm and often clear, and hiking, camping, swimming and fishing beckon to everyone.

You are probably too busy. Or you haven't caught up with chores around the house. Or something. Our advice is to forget your problems, take to the hills, the mountains, or the seashore, and refresh your mind and your body—and perhaps, your soul.

Nature is a wonderful therapy. July is a wonderful month. And maybe other years will bring even more problems. For example, we are not at war. Gasoline is not rationed. You are free to drive where you wish and enjoy variable and interesting scenery and met interesting people.

The slaughter on our highways continues, however, and while seeking to enjoy the outdoors and warm weather, several thousand Americans lose their lives each summer. Another ten to twenty thousand are injured, crippled, scarred, or seriously hurt. See that you are not one of these. But enjoy July, 1958, and the freedom that is ours, and the luxury nature offers us all!

THE KEY BATTLE

There are those who hold that the greatest threat to our nation is not military but economic. To that end, we need to make a greater effort in the direction of greater trade and commerce with the various groups of nations in the world. The United States has been all-powerful for decades in the economic and industrial field, but we now find ourselves long on ability to produce, and short on profitable markets for our commodities. Over one-third of all the people of the world are not available as our customers. They would doubtless like to buy our fabulous goods, but there are doors to be opened and arrangements to be made as to how the bill is to be paid. There is nothing more challenging to our government than to work out a way to expand the markets for American goods and build up fair deals for the exchange of commerce with other nations.

Washington Notes

Radar To Spot Satellite

The Defense Department has announced that it plans to have in operation by the end of the year a radio-radar network that could detect even a silent satellite passing over the United States.

Work will begin immediately, according to the announcement made by the department's Advanced Research Projects Agency.

Sharing of Atom

The House of Representatives, by a 346-12 vote, has approved legislation permitting the United States to share nuclear weapons secrets with close military allies. The legislation now goes to the Senate, where it is expected to be approved shortly despite some opposition. The bill had been requested by the Administration.

3 States Add to Job Aid

Three more states have signed agreements with the Labor Department that will permit their long-term unemployed to receive temporary Federal aid.

The three — Delaware, Indiana, and Maryland — bring the total so far to nine states and the District of Columbia.

New Stamp

The Post Office Department has made an announcement to the effect that the 8-cent version of the forthcoming Simon Bolivar "Champion of Liberty" stamp would feature a design in red, blue and golden ochre. This denomination of the stamp is designed for international mail. It will also be issued in an ochre-colored 4-cent denomination for domestic use. Both stamps will have their first-day sale July 24.

Transit Inquiry Voted

The Senate has voted to authorize its Commerce Committee to undertake a $100,000 investigation of national transportation policies.

The resolution calls for a study of Government regulatory policy, ownership and merger of transportation concerns, Government aid programs and passenger service.

Savings Increased

The Government has confirmed what many business men have believed all along — people saved more of their cash in the first quarter of this year.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported that savings of the cash type savings accounts, Government savings bonds, and life insurance were at a record rate in the first quarter, higher than even the war-time peak reached in 1944.

Democratic Gain Seen

The National Committee for an Effective Congress predicted recently that the Democrats would gain in next fall's Congressional elections and that as a consequence there would be a swing in Democratic party control away from the South.

The committee, a private, non-profit organization, said this development would have a "liberalizing" effect on the party, but also would create "headaches" for its leadership.

It said a Democratic victory was "generally accepted." The only question, according to the committee, is how many seats the Democrats will pick up in each house.

Study Backs Vaccine

Chicago.—Research has shown that Salk anti-polio vaccine does not damage the brain, according to a recent report by the American Medical Association.

Dr. Frederic A. Gibbs and an associate prepared the report after an "extended clinical study" of 852 persons who received three Salk polio shots each at centers in Chicago, Rockford, Ill., and Richmond, Va.
